New England's Monthly Numismatic Catalog

NERCA Conducts the ANA This Month

July is a very special month for New England. Only July 29-August 1, New England Rare Coin Auctions will be conducting the 1979 Auction of the American Numismatic Association. As most Inventory Selections readers know, this is numismatics' most famous annual event. And New England is proud to have been selected to conduct it. Bidders at the '79 ANA will have many spectacular rarities to choose from — coins that may never be sold at auction again. Collectors of U.S. coinage will be particularly interested in our quality U.S. gold lots and our unique offering of U.S. Patterns. World coin collectors will want to bid on our large selection of Russian coins. Ancients collectors will appreciate our fine Greek and Roman coins. Medal collectors will be vying for the extremely rare Taft-Sherman Inaugural in gold. And paper money collectors will be offered an outstanding selection of uncut sheets. We hope to see you there.

More exciting news: 2 brand-new numismatic services are on the horizon for New England customers. Both are being introduced in this issue of Inventory Selections. The first is the New England Personal Service Card — a specially prepared, custom-embossed card that not only identifies you as a New England collector, but also makes it easy for you to take advantage of our Approval Account Service and Deferred Payment Plan. The other, a special V.I.P. Collection/Investment Plan, could qualify you for some particularly advantageous numismatic extras. See our full-page announcements elsewhere in this issue for complete details.

Please remember that you can extend your Inventory Selections subscription for a full year (12 issues) simply by purchasing $150 or more from our retail inventory. A purchase of $275 or more will extend your subscription for 2 years (24 issues).

John Coppola

Have a conversation with NERCG numismatist John Coppola and you'll immediately discover why he's come so far so quickly in the rare coin field. John has a quick mind, he delivers his thoughts in clear, easily understandable terms, and he knows his coins. "My collecting experiences go back to . . . I guess when I was 11 or 12. I had a paper route and I'd rummage through the change. I'd even take dollar bills to the bank and trade them for rolls of quarters and half dollars." Years later, John joined the McDonald's Corporation and became its youngest manager in history.

When not working, John, only 16 at the time, began to dabble in the stock market. "I had a broker I worked with and I enjoyed it, because I love math and numbers." That love eventually led John to join Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis as a stockbroker. There, he gathered 5 years of experience handling hundreds of investment portfolios. He also became licensed for real estate, insurance, options, commodities, NASD and SEC. John is also a Certified Financial Planner. "At Paine-Webber, we always told our clients never to put all their eggs in one basket. So I'd help my clients to put 10, 15 or 20% of their money into rare coins. It was easy to get the sanction to do that from my manager. He was a rare coin investor, too."

John eventually earned a Vice-Presidency at Paine-Webber, but his interest in rare coins soon brought him to New England Rare Coin Galleries. "When I was at Paine-Webber, I'd buy most of my coins for clients from New England. So everybody here knew me and my knowledge of coins. I thought that if I could combine my hobby with helping people make money, that would be great!"

John and his wife, Joanne, currently live just a few miles west of Boston. They have 2 children with a third due this November. In the midst of his professional and family lives, John still finds time to pursue fishing and rare coin collecting. "I have 3 complete sets of Three Cent Nickels, and some gold and silver type coins." Nor has John any intention of giving up his collection in the near future. "Coins have one all-important advantage: a fixed supply in the face of increasing demand. You can always split stock or build houses or mine more gold. But with rare coins, it's the perfect situation."

The Hidden Coin Market

by Gregory Potter
Editor, Inventory Selections

Competition in the rare coin market

In today's amazingly active numismatic world, there seem to be two distinct markets in which a collector can buy coins. The first is an open, very public market consisting of rare coin catalogs, auctions, conventions and advertisements in numismatic publications. Anyone can buy any of the coins offered through these outlets — because these outlets are directed at the general numismatic public. And although it may be fun to vie with all the collectors purchasing through these outlets, it can also, at times, be very frustrating. The bigger the crowd, the heavier the competition. And the heavier the competition, the greater your chances of repeatedly winding up empty-handed.

The second coin-buying market, however, is a much quieter, more private arena. This market consists of collection/investment plans and Want List purchasing. Inventory Selections subscribers will remember that the advantages and pitfalls involved in collection/investment plans were discussed in our April issue.* This issue, we'd like to focus on the second half of the "hidden" coin market: Want Lists.

Like collection/investment plans, Want Lists help collectors bypass much of the fierce competition now occurring in the more "public" rare coin market. And bypassing this competition is becoming more important with each passing day. Because the total market is growing by leaps and bounds. In 1960, there were an estimated 2 million collectors of rare coins in the United States. Today, there are over 12 million.

How Want Lists help

Seasoned collectors know that anyone can create their own Want List. There is no standard, recognized Want List format. All the collector needs is to write down the coins he wants and include as much information about those coins as necessary. For example, collectors who aren't particularly choosy might just write down the coins types they want and leave the rest to whichever dealer is to receive the list. More meticulous collectors often write down specific coin types, dates, grades and other data (such as whether they're looking for prooflike specimens, toned specimens, specimens with frosted devices, etc.). And although most dealers plead with customers to make their Want Lists legible, it doesn't matter whether the list is typed, penned or crayoned. Creating the list is the important thing.

Once you've created your Want List, you'll be entering that hidden, private rare coin market, thereby enabling yourself to bypass much collector competition, and increasing your chances of getting the coins you desire in three ways. First, you'll be bypassing competition for coins that appear in public advertisements. As anyone who's ever tried to order coins from ads knows, some coins listed in ads simply aren't available, even though they're advertised as available. The reason for this is simple. Coin ads are comprised of coins that a dealer has in stock and wants to sell. So the dealer creates his ad and sends it to whatever publication the ad is to appear in. But publications usually take 2 to 3 weeks before actually printing ads. During those weeks, the dealer will check his inventory against his customer's Want Lists — because, to the dealer, Want Lists represent almost certain demand. (I say “almost certain” because listing a coin in a Want List does not obligate the customer to buy the coin. A Want List is not a contract.) On the other hand, the demand that the dealer's ad will attract is highly uncertain. So before the ad appears, the dealer will make all the certain sales he can — by offering his coins to Want List customers. Customers without Want Lists are the ones left to compete for the leftovers when the dealer's ad is finally published. Customers with Want Lists get first pickings.

Want Lists also help collectors bypass competition in catalogs. Often, before a dealer catalogs his inventory, he will check any newly purchased coins he may have against his customers' Want Lists. The principle here is the same as with dealer advertisements: the dealer investigates almost certain demand before going to the expense of cataloging coins for an uncertain catalog readership. This means that some coins may never appear in the dealer's catalog — coins that have already been taken by Want List customers.

Finally, Want Lists help collectors bypass competition at coin conventions. One of the primary methods a dealer uses to fill Want Lists is to shop for listed coins at conventions. Chances are, if you've sent your list to a good dealer, that dealer will be a much more effective shopper than yourself — especially if the dealer has a staff of four or five highly-trained numismatists. On a crowded convention floor full of eager collectors, an army of shoppers always has a better chance of locating a specific coin than a lone individual.

The best Want List strategy

Of course, one of the best features of Want Lists is that most dealers will service Want Lists free (i.e. you pay nothing for the dealer's efforts on your behalf — you are only charged for any coins you might buy from him). For this reason, some collectors send out many Want Lists to many different dealers. There is nothing wrong with this practice but, in the end, sending out multiple lists is a waste of the collector's time. Some dealers to whom you send a list may never refer to it. These dealers simply toss Want Lists in the nearest wastebasket and deluge you with price lists. Of the dealers who actively fill Want Lists, most do so, in part, by contacting their peers. For instance, if Dealer X received your Want List but doesn't have all the material you've listed, he will oftentimes contact Dealer Y to see if he can purchase it for you. So sending a list to one dealer often puts you on the pipeline to several.

Nor is it always wise to send out multiple lists for the purpose of “bargain hunting.” In an article written for the ANA's Introduction to Numismatics, Stuart Mosher and Arthur Sipe note that some collectors send Want Lists to many dealers to compare various dealer prices on listed items. Yet, Mr. Mosher finds that this tactic often works to the collector's detriment. Once a collector sends out multiple lists with hard-to-get rarities on it, the dealers who receive the lists are all bound to contact sources that usually have those rarities. These sources will consequently begin receiving multiple dealer requests for the same items. In response to this sudden “high demand” for the items, the sources are bound to raise their prices. Subsequently, the bargain-hunting collector receives relatively high quotes on his Want List items.

The key to the successful use of Want Lists is to find one or two good dealers and send Want Lists only to them. In this context, a “good” dealer is one who has (1) a reputation for filling Want Lists quickly and efficiently, (2) the resources to service many Want List customers (without such resources your dealer's other Want List customers may provide their own brand of collector competition) and (3) a thoroughly professional staff specializing in the types of coins you want most. Sending a Want List to this type of dealer will help you bypass much of the competition you would otherwise encounter in the public market and help you take full advantage of the more private, “hidden” rare coin market.

Market Report

by Tim LaPointe

At the shows

For the third month in a row, choice type coins remain extremely hard to locate at any of the major coin shows. As we reported last month, June's first coin show, the Long Beach Coin & Stamp Show (held May 31-June 3), saw many dealers missing out on choice type material because these dealers weren't ready to buy the instant they spotted a nice specimen. The same story seemed true at Harvey's Inn-vitational Coin Show (held June 14-17). A select amount of choice material traded hands there but only among dealers and collectors who were willing to buy at a moment's notice. Naturally, this great scarcity of choice type material continues to boost prices almost weekly. July, however, may be an excellent time to hunt for values. Two major coin shows (Metropolitan Washington and the ANA) will be occurring back-to-back.

Gold

Gold bullion rose slightly last month from May's high of $277 per ounce. At present, however, the price of gold bullion remains stable in the low $280's. Nevertheless, rare gold coins, no matter what types, continue to trade hands for premium prices if graded MS-65 or better. For example, a superb 1911-D Indian Head Quarter Eagle was reportedly sold last month for $8,500. A superb 1857 No Motto Liberty Head Half Eagle sold for $8,750. An MS-69 1914-D Indian Head Eagle reportedly traded hands at around $5,000. And a superb 1907 High-Relief St. Gaudens Double Eagle was sold to a collector for $18,500. It seems that as inflation increases, the rush to buy choice gold coinage increases right along with it.

Silver

Silver is also doing quite well these days. As this report is being written, almost every silver issue is showing gains from last week. In particular, Mercury Dimes, Walking Liberty Half Dollars and all silver dollars have never been more active. Mercury Dimes did level off for a few weeks last month because many collectors and dealers sold Mercuries to take advantage of high bid prices. However, with signs that silver will continue to soar becoming increasingly apparent, more and more Mercury collectors are holding onto their coins, causing price levels to climb again. Choice early date Mercuries are still extremely hard to locate, even at their currently substantial price levels.

Price increases in the Walking Liberty Half Dollar series seem unstoppable. Practically every issue has shown substantial increases in the past few weeks. At the Long Beach Coin & Stamp Show, a nice 1921-S in MS-63 reportedly sold for between $10,000 and $15,000. Gem-grade Walkers are selling for well over bid price levels.

Silver Dollars also keep getting stronger and stronger. The most sought-after issues seem to be the better dates in MS-65 and MS-67 condition. Especially hot are choice examples of O-mints, CC's and the better S-mint dates. Some of the mid-priced S-mint dates, such as 1890, 1891 and 1897, still seem to have a ways to go before catching up with the rest of the silver dollar market. Choice O-mints seem to be very scarce on today's market and any nice specimens that can be found command premium prices. For example, an 1895-O Morgan Dollar in gem condition was reported sold recently for over $20,000.

Two other types of note include Franklin Half Dollars and early-date Washington Quarters. Both seem to be moving quite nicely at present. Later-date Washington Quarters and common-date Roosevelt Dimes, however, seem to be moving only when the price of silver bullion increases.

Other news

With the current extreme scarcity of choice material on the market, many dealers and collectors seem to be turning to common-date coinage. With activity building in this area, many common-dates are bound to climb briskly very soon.

In the Nickel area, Buffaloes are up sharply. Jefferson Nickel rolls, which went down slightly in May, are now holding steady.

Most types of copper coinage are holding steady. However, Flying Eagle Cents in MS-65 condition increased approximately 10% last month. Indian Cents in true MS-65 are scarce and bringing premium prices. And early-date Lincoln Proofs in gem condition are still in great demand.

July, 1979

The figures recorded in this month's Numismatic Price Index indicate average price trends from May 31, 1979 through June 30, 1979.

The LaVere Redfield Collection

In 1974, a handful of government agents made an amazing numismatic discovery. Tucked away in the basement of a huge mansion sat the world's largest collection of U.S. silver dollars. 407,283 coins. 85% were uncirculated. Most were Morgan Dollars. All had been owned by the late multi-millionaire LaVere Redfield.

Now, New England is offering a choice selection of exquisite Redfield Morgan Dollars to our customers. And to ensure your satisfaction with any of these coins you may choose, we've extended our normal 45-day return privilege to 6 months! If, for any reason, you are not satisfied with your Redfield Dollars, return them within 6 months for a full refund or replacement.

Our Complete Numismatic Services

1. Guarantees

☐ Grading

We guarantee that coins purchased from New England Rare Coin Galleries are graded accurately. They will meet our high standards whenever you decide to sell them. If you sell them to us, we guarantee to purchase them at the same grade as they were when originally purchased from us.

Our grading system is patterned after that of the American Numismatic Association. Developed in 1978, the A.N.A. System is rapidly being adopted by virtually the entire professional numismatic community. Its designations are:

Poor.....	1
Fair.....	2
About Good.....	3
Good.....	4,5
Very Good.....	8,10
Fine.....	12,15
Very Fine.....	20,25,30,35
Extremely Fine.....	40,45
About Uncirculated.....	50,55,58
Mint State.....	60,63,64,65,66,67,69,70
Proof.....	60,63,65,67,69,70

Slash grades indicate obverse/reverse designations. For example, a grade of 65/63 describes a coin with an obverse of Mint State 65 and a reverse of Mint State 63.

☐ Authenticity

We further guarantee that all coins sold by New England Rare Coin Galleries are authentic. To protect our customers, and as proof of our certainty that no altered or counterfeit coin can escape our attention, we guarantee to refund the full purchase price plus 15% compound annual interest, on any non-authentic coin acquired from us.

☐ Documentation

These guarantees are issued in writing with all coins purchased from New England Rare Coin Galleries. Each written guarantee is personally endorsed by two professional numismatists.

☐ Satisfaction

If, for any reason, you are not satisfied with your purchases, you may return them within 45 days of the date you received them for a full refund or replacement.
